20 Years of Grantmaking for Midwifery in North America

The 2017 Birth Trust: doing the work, making a difference

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Midwifery Assistant Program: 5-week training for 15 aspiring midwives of color with resources, mentors, and peer support</th>
<th>Midwifery Integration Study infographics and web site</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>ANCIENT SONG DOULA SERVICES</td>
<td>HOME BIRTH SUMMIT RESEARCH AND DATA TASKFORCE</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Centering voices that are missing from most national midwifery leadership tables: black midwives, midwives of color, LGBTQ2S</th>
<th>Survey of midwives across the nation about their experiences with insurance reimbursement</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>MANA DIVISION OF ACCESS AND EQUITY</td>
<td>MANA HEALTH POLICY AND ADVOCACY</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Giving Voice to Mothers: Data analysis for study using unique participatory action model</th>
<th>Spanish-language web site for The Birth Place CommonSense Childbirth</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>HOME BIRTH SUMMIT CONSUMER TASK FORCE</td>
<td>NARM Student-of-Color Prep Program</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| CALIFORNIA ASSOCIATION OF MIDWIVES | CALIFORNIA ASSOCIATION OF MIDWIVES |

For a complete list of grants, go to formidwifery.org/projects-funded
From the Executive Director

In spite of a challenging year in the United States of America, FAM was fortunate enough to harness its resources and do good work. It would be wrong not to acknowledge the families separated at this country’s borders, the voluminous cries of #metoo, and the escalation of the loss of life or the near miss among Black and Brown women during and after childbirth. For them, and others who struggled this year, I encourage everyone to hold a space for them in your prayers.

As FAM’s executive director I would define 2017 - 2018 as a year of listening good. Listening to community leaders individually and collectively, listening to the data, the media, our colleagues in the birth world, and listening to one another. As a result, we did some hard individual and organizational work and made tough decisions.

Personally, the hardest part for me was having to hit the send button on the email that read “FAM will not be allocating grants under the Birth Trust this year.” Grant making and relationship building are two aspects of my job that I am most passionate about and not being able to engage in grant making was painful for me, even though I knew in the long run it would make FAM stronger.

Instead, I was able to help give voice to communities of color by working on the committee that planned and implemented FAM’s first ever Community Microgrants. The individuals who run each project are amazing community leaders and I am proud to know and support every one of them.

I’d like to end on a forward-looking note and invite you, the reader, to join FAM. There’s always a seat at our table. You can apply to join the board, join us on social media, make a donation before the year ends, or become a Birth Trustee - a recurring monthly donor. Whatever decision you make, do it today.

Warmly,

Tamara Wrenn
Introducing the Community Microgrant Fund

by Janis Gildin and Tamara Wrenn

This has been a year of focused re-imagining and re-creation at FAM. We are engaging in the work of shifting the narrative and changing the story of maternity care in North America by acknowledging and addressing system barriers in our own nonprofit infrastructure, in our strategic goal setting, in our approach to development and communications, as well as in our grant-making paradigms. The FAM Community Microgrant initiative emerged as one tangible result of this year of focus.

FAM established the Community Microgrant Fund to support community-based projects that address disparities and inequities in marginalized and vulnerable communities. The objective of the fund is to initiate grassroots, action-based solutions to self-identified challenges through community directed problem solving and leadership development. FAM’s vision of access to respectful and culturally appropriate maternity care from community-based midwives, available to all families and recognized as a human right, is enhanced by the contributions of each of our community microgrant recipients. We honor them for their work. The following six community microgrants were distributed this year:

Birth from the Earth. Yonkers, NY: Chocolate Milk Café
Chocolate Milk Café is designed to provide education, support, resources and a safe space in which to collectively gather on a regular basis in order to address existing barriers to successful breastfeeding for women of color and improve outcomes in regards to maternal and infant health in the local community.

Birthing People Foundation. Los Angeles, CA: Birthworker Training for WOC/POC
Established to address the alarming disparities in outcomes for birthing people of color and those from other marginalized communities, the Birthworker Training for Women of Color/People of Color provides quality training inclusive of LGBTQi, non-gender-conforming persons, Latinx and indigenous populations.

Equity in Midwifery Education. Leavenworth, WA: Web-based Resource
Equitymidwifery.org, aims to amplify the voices and perspectives of midwives and aspiring midwives of color and serve as a living repository for the transformative ideas and tools necessary to bring about equity in midwifery education and training.

Center for Indigenous Midwifery. Olympia, WA: Salish Seas Indigenous Birthworker Gathering and Community Awareness Event
The community day included tribal members along with family health and social justice organizations with a focus on health inequities in Indian country and the intersections of sovereignty, environmental and reproductive justice, and community healing.

California Association of Midwives. Coarsegold, CA: Student Midwives of Color Exam Prep
CAM will develop and implement an exam preparation program in order to facilitate an increase in the enrollment and retention of aspiring midwives of color in midwifery education and training programs.

National Black Midwives Alliance. Miami, FL: Black Midwife Mentor Program
The Black Midwife Mentor program works to pair black midwifery students and preceptors together in order to establish pivotal learning relationships free from racial microaggressions and the unrecognized effects of implicit bias and unacknowledged white privilege.
From the President

In 1998, a group of passionate midwives and advocates founded FAM to advance the midwifery model of care in North America. Over the past 20 years, FAM has funded groundbreaking research and data collection, the establishment of allied midwifery organizations, public awareness campaigns, policy initiatives, fledgling community organizations, and more. Today, new leaders have taken the mantle of FAM with respect and admiration for the years of dedication and hard work of our foremothers. We seek to continue FAM’s impact and evolution, embracing equity and social justice values to diversify the midwifery profession, the clients served by midwives, and our organizations.

During this year of transition, we recognized the imperative for FAM to update our models of fundraising and grantmaking, to grow our impact and reach, and to reflect our values and the need for transformative change. We took a break from our traditional grantmaking cycle to create space for capacity building. While our work is not complete, I am proud to say that we have added three new board members, transitioned board leadership to a new president (me), launched our Student Ambassador program, initiated our community microgrants program, and developed tools and plans to make our work more effective.

In the spring, we welcomed new board members Chanel Porchia-Albert, RaShaunda Lugrand, and Audra Post. These women are emerging leaders in the midwifery movement and I am thrilled to collaborate with them and all our board members in this work. With gratitude and humility, we thank outgoing FAM board members Laurie Foster, Priya Morganstern, Geradine Simkins, and Vicki Hedley.

The innovations and impact of our FAM grantees give me hope for the future of birthing in North America. Thank you, our donors and grantees, for your passion and commitment to the advancement of midwifery.

In gratitude,
Emily Anesta